

Paul Davis began his law enforcement career with the Massanutten Police Department in 1998. He then came to the Shenandoah Police Department, staying just under a year, before moving on to the Page County Sheriff's Department, where he spent the next 4 years. In 2002, Davis rejoined the Shenandoah Police Department. While serving Shenandoah he has been a K-9 handler, Corporal, Lieutenant, and Captain and, in 2012, was promoted to Chief of Police.

Paul has lived in this area his entire life. In 2007, he married his best friend, and they have four children. When asked what he likes best about his job in law enforcement, the Chief stated, "I am dedicated to serving and protecting the Town of Shenandoah. I take great pride in reaching out to the children in the community. My officers and I make a point to visit the students at Shenandoah Elementary School several times a week."

He added, "I believe in treating everyone fairly. I am extremely blessed to have wonderful officers who are also dedicated to the safety and service of the citizens of the Town of Shenandoah."
