

(Kirk) Brandon Morris has always had a dream of working in Law Enforcement. He graduated from Spotswood High School in 1989. He worked in masonry for a short while before going to work at KVK Precision Specialties. He became acquainted with former Shenandoah Police Chief, Pete Monteleone, who gave him the opportunity to ride along with him. In 2003, he was hired by the Town of Elkton as a police officer, and he also worked part time for the Town of Shenandoah. In 2004, he left Elkton Police Department and came to work full time for the Town of Shenandoah. He completed Basic Academy and has continued to take classes required to remain certified, which includes refresher and specialty courses, such as Legal, Cultural Diversity, and Career Development.

Brandon finds interacting with the people to be the most rewarding part of his job. He does his best to maintain a good rapport with the citizens, including those who break the law. His goal is to make a difference in someone's life.

When he has the opportunity, he gives witness to his faith and belief in God. He has been able to see some people make a change and turn their life around. "That means a lot to me," Brandon said. He truly is living his dream.

Brandon has been married for 21 years, and he has two daughters, 14 and 18.
